BACKGROUND INFORMATION

It is recognised that in any communal living situation, such as a retirement village where amenities are shared, disputes between residents and the administering body, or between residents, may occur from time to time. The Retirement Villages Code places particular emphasis on providing easy access to an informal and inexpensive process to resolve disputes. The prevention of disputes through open communication and the provision of information, and democratic decision-making, are always preferable.

Many disputes are due to simple misunderstandings or lack of suitable information. Every attempt should be made by those involved in a dispute to resolve it between themselves. It may be useful to discuss the problem with a friend or advocate (for example, a member of the residents' committee) before using the dispute processes available under the Code.

In the ongoing improvement of the management of the Hyde Retirement Village, we are continuing to update and improve our processes, with this process being reviewed, we are now looking at the appointment of a resident to the disputes Committee.

As stated in the Fair Trading (Retirement Villages Code) Regulations 2006 – Division 6 – Dispute resolution 6.2 (1) (a):

(1) Where a dispute occurs in a retirement village –

(a) the administering body must nominate a suitable person or body to deal with the dispute.

The Town of Bassendean has a Complaint Handling Process and includes the following for major concerns of the Hyde Retirement Village:

If a complaint is from a Hyde Retirement Village resident, the Committee shall consist of the Mayor or CEO or their delegate, an independent community member agreed upon by the complainant and the Town, and a representative appointed by the Village.

It is to this Dispute Resolution Committee for Hyde Retirement Village we are seeking resident's nominations.

Calling of a nomination for the Hyde Retirement Village Disputes Committee One (1) to be elected.

OFFICER RECOMMENDATION – ITEM 6.1

That one interested resident be elected to the Hyde Retirement Village Disputes Committee
